

OHIO UNIVERSITY
SELECTED RATIOS
 1997 - 2003

The facilities maintenance ratio measures the financial resources that an institution devotes to maintaining the physical plant and the outstanding deferred maintenance that may be a significant future liability.

This ratio analyzes whether core services are using a growing or dwindling share of institutional resources. Core services are defined as the functional categories of expense directly linked to the mission of the organization, including instruction, research, and public service.